INTRODUCTION

1. In the 1970's, ASIS International, Inc. ("ASIS"), a global association for security management professionals, developed its "Certified Protection Professional" a/k/a "CPP" certification program, which, over the next several decades, came to be recognized as one of the most prestigious certifications in the security industry. Over 40 years later, one of ASIS's members - who himself proudly boasts his CPP certifications, as seen on his LinkedIn page below - started a new company and began offering a security certification which the company called "Certified Executive Protection Professional" a/k/a "CEPP" certification -i.e. marks nearly identical to ASIS's incontestable "Certified Protection Professional" and "CPP" trademarks.

- 2. In 2022, ASIS became aware of the infringing conduct of Mr. Cameron's company, Board of Executive Protection Professionals, Inc. ("BEPP"). Around that same time, ASIS learned that BEPP had also filed a federal trademark application for a mark nearly identical to ASIS's "Certified Protection Professional" -i.e. "Certified Executive Protection Professional" - which also copied, nearly verbatim, the entirety of ASIS's federal trademark application (i.e. the description of services in the same trademark classes).
- 3. At that time, ASIS notified BEPP of its infringement. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Cameron responded, stating that "CEPP references have been removed from the website." Around that same time, BEPP also abandoned its trademark application for "Certified Executive Protection" Professional."

4.	Despite this, two years later, BEPP shockingly has not only begun once again to use the infringing	"Certified Executive Protection Professional" mark, but also filed a new trademark application fo	r the same mark it previously abandoned. And further, BEPP has also begun using other addition	al confusingly-similar marks that improperly trade off ASIS's goodwill built over nearly half-a-o	century, and which are likely to confuse security practitioners.

5. In order to stop BEPP's willful infringement once and for all, ASIS has been forced to file this lawsuit and, accordingly, seeks treble damages, injunctive relief, and its attorneys' fees.

PARTIES

- 6. Plaintiff ASIS International, Inc. ("Plaintiff" or "ASIS") is a Delaware company with its headquarters at 1625 Prince Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22314.
- Upon information and belief, Defendant Board of Executive Protection 7. Professionals, Inc. ("Defendant" or "BEPP") is a Nevada company with a listed address of 8131 Dolce Flore Ave., Las Vegas, Nevada 89178.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

- 8. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1338(a) over the Lanham Act claims against BEPP. The federal claims arise under the trademark laws of the United States, specifically 15 U.S.C. §§ 1051 et seq. Subject matter jurisdiction exists over any remaining claims under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a) because the claims are so related that they form part of the same case or controversy.
- 9. This Court has personal jurisdiction over BEPP because BEPP has a principal place of business in this jurisdiction and because the causes of action asserted here arise from BEPP's infringing and unfair business practices in this jurisdiction.
- 10. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because BEPP is subject to personal jurisdiction in this district, has committed acts of infringement in this district, has a regular and established place of business in this district, a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims occurred in this judicial district, and a substantial part of property that is subject of the action is situated in this judicial district.

11. ASIS is a globally recognized, nonprofit organization that serves professionals in the security management industry.

FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS

- 12. Founded in 1955, ASIS (previously known as the American Society for Industrial Security) is dedicated to advancing the field of security by providing resources, education, certifications, and networking opportunities for security professionals worldwide.
- 13. ASIS supports a wide range of industries, including executive protection, corporate security, law enforcement, loss prevention, physical security, cybersecurity, and more.
- 14. ASIS organizes conferences, provides standards and guidelines for security practices, and advocates for the security profession globally. Its members include security professionals, risk managers, law enforcement officers, and others involved in protecting people, property, and information.
- 15. ASIS maintains partnerships with public and private organizations in the U.S. and around the world to provide opportunities for ASIS's members to engage on issues that affect security professionals.
- 16. Such organizations include Aspen Institute's Cybersecurity Risk Council; AWS Bundesverband; Building Industry Consulting Service International (BICSI); Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms & Explosives (ATF); Canadian Security Association (CANASA); Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA); Department of Homeland Security Office of Intelligence & Analysis (DHS-I&A); Department of Homeland Security Science & Technology Directorate (DHS-S&T); Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); HostageUS; Infragard National Member Alliance (INMA); International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP); National Sheriff's Association (NSA); National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC); Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI); Overseas Security Advisory Council (OSAC); and Security Industry Association (SIA).
- 17. ASIS has many members, including professionals from a wide range of industries and backgrounds who are involved in various aspects of security management.

18. Generally speaking, ASIS members fall into certain categories: security practitioners (e.g., corporate security managers, physical security specialists, loss prevention professionals, cybersecurity experts, risk managers); executive protection professionals; law enforcement and military personnel; consultants (e.g., security consultants who advise businesses and organizations on risk management, security assessments, and threat mitigation); academics and researchers (e.g. researchers in the fields of security, criminology, risk management); security vendors and service providers (e.g., companies providing security technologies, products, and services such as surveillance systems, alarm systems, cybersecurity tools); and students (aspiring security professionals such as students pursuing degrees in criminal justice, etc.).

- One reason members join ASIS is to access educational resources, industry 19. standards certification, networking opportunities, and professional development tools to further their careers in security management and related fields.
- 20. A key aspect for ASIS members is that ASIS provides various accredited certifications to security professionals. Such certifications include the Certified Protection Professional (CPP) certification, the Professional Certified Investigator (PCI) certification, the Physical Security Professional (PSP) certification, and the Associate Protection Professional (APP) certification, each of which is highly regarded in the security profession.

В. ASIS's "Certified Protection Professional" and "CPP" Certifications and Marks

- 21. At least as early as 1977-1978, ASIS has offered a certification for security professionals called "Certified Protection Professional," or "CPP."
- 22. ASIS's Certified Protection Professional/CPP credential is designed for individuals in the security management field who have demonstrated expertise in various areas of security, including risk management, investigations, personnel security, executive protection, crisis management, threat assessment, emergency planning, physical security, and business continuity.
- 23. To become a "Certified Protection Professional," candidates must meet certain eligibility requirements, including a combination of education and professional experience in

10

26

27 28 security management, as well as passing a comprehensive exam that tests knowledge across multiple areas of security management.

- 24. Recognized throughout the United States and globally, the Certified Protection Professional/CPP certification is understood by the relevant public as a mark of excellence in the field of security management.
- 25. Thus, for nearly half a century, ASIS has continuously used "Certified Protection Professional" and "CPP" as trademarks in the field of security management and protection.
- 26. ASIS owns the following federal trademark registrations related to its "Certified Protection Professional" and "CPP" brand (collectively, "the ASIS CPP Marks"):

Mark	Reg. Number	Year of First Use
CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL	4,196,805	1978
СРР	1,950,033	1977
СРР	2,624,248	1978
CPP	2,658,777	1977
Cortifice Protection P	2,768,947	1997

- 27. Under the ASIS CPP Marks, ASIS offers a variety of services, including, but not limited to preparing, administering and scoring of standardized tests in the field of industrial security management and protection and conducting educational courses in industrial security management and protection; testing, analysis and evaluation of the knowledge, skills and abilities of others for the purpose of certification and re-certification in the field of industrial security management and protection; and conducting an educational course in industrial security and protection.
- 28. As a result of its longstanding use of the ASIS CPP Marks, and the significant resources expended on marketing and promotion throughout the years, the ASIS CPP Marks have come to serve as a symbol of the high quality services, including certification services, offered by ASIS.

16

29. As a consequence of ASIS's continuous use of the ASIS CPP Marks in the field of security protection and management throughout the United States, and due to the significant investment of time, money, effort, and popularity of the marks, the ASIS CPP Marks have acquired value and are well-known to the consuming public and trade as identifying and distinguishing of its source.

30. Further, the ASIS CPP Marks are "incontestable," meaning that various aspects of the ASIS CPP Marks cannot be challenged by third parties including, for example, the validity of marks.

C. BEPP's Willfully Infringing Conduct

- 31. In 2022, decades after ASIS established rights in the ASIS CPP Marks, ASIS became aware that BEPP had begun use of a nearly identical mark: "Certified Executive Protection Professional."
- 32. Similar to ASIS's abbreviated "CPP" mark, BEPP also began using the nearly identical "CEPP" mark.
- 33. ASIS also learned that BEPP had also sought to federally register the mark "Certified Executive Protection Professional" (Serial Number 90/643,874, the "874 Application") with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office on April 14, 2021.
- 34. On or around February 10, 2022, ASIS sent a letter to James Cameron, Chairman of BEPP, informing BEPP of ASIS's federal trademark registration for "Certified Protection Professional," Reg. No. 4,196,805, and that use of "Certified Executive Protection Professional" would infringe ASIS's "Certified Protection Professional" trademark registration. See Exhibit A.
- 35. In ASIS's letter dated February 10, 2022, ASIS noted that BEPP's infringing conduct further included express reference to ASIS (as shown below), increasing the likelihood of confusion between the ASIS CPP Marks and BEPP.

18

25

28

- 36. In response to ASIS's letter dated February 10, 2022, Mr. Cameron of BEPP responded that the infringing uses had been "removed from the website." See Exhibit B.
 - 37. Notably, Mr. Cameron has been a member of ASIS since January 5, 2016.
- 38. In fact, Mr. Cameron proudly boasts his CPP certifications, which he has had since at least November 1, 2016.
- 39. Accordingly, Mr. Cameron and BEPP were aware of the ASIS CPP Marks before BEPP began using and applying "Certified Executive Protection Professional" for registration.
- 40. In addition to the fact that a member of ASIS who was aware of the ASIS CPP Marks began using a nearly identical name and abbreviation (i.e., "Certified Protection Professional" and "CPP" vs. "Certified Executive Protection Professional" and "CEPP"), there are other indicators that BEPP was attempting to merely copy and trade on the goodwill of the ASIS CPP Marks.
- 41. For example, in its application for the nearly-identical "Certified Executive Protection Professional" (Serial Number 90/643,874) mark, for its goods and services description, BEPP essentially copied the ASIS's goods and services description from ASIS's "Certified Protection Professional" registration in the same exact classes (Class 41 and 42).

16

19

27

25

28

42. In the chart below, compare the column on the left, which shows ASIS's goods and services description for its mark filed in 2011, to BEPP's goods and services filed in 2021, in the right column. BEPP copied ASIS's application nearly verbatim.

- 43. BEPP's attempt to include the self-serving qualifier that this description was "not the same as other certifications which deal in other aspects of security" (annotated in red above) notwithstanding, BEPP's awareness of ASIS's CPP marks, adoption of nearly identical marks, and attempt to register them using the same goods and services in the same classes is evidence of BEPP's willful infringement.
- 44. Notably, after being contacted by ASIS regarding BEPP's infringing conduct, BEPP's '874 Application for "Certified Executive Protection Professional" was abandoned.
- 45. However, despite its awareness of the ASIS CPP Marks, its express acknowledgment of ASIS's allegations in its trademark rights, its removal of the infringing marks, and the abandonment of the '874 Application in 2022, BEPP astoundingly reemerged in 2024 again using the same infringing marks and again attempting to seek registration with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

- 46. On or around September 13, 2024, ASIS sent another letter to Mr. Cameron of BEPP regarding BEPP's renewed willful infringement by its use of "Certified Executive Protection Professional." See Exhibit C.
- 47. Despite this notice, not only has BEPP refused to cease its infringement, ASIS has also learned that BEPP is concurrently using ASIS's platforms which Mr. Cameron of BEPP has access to via his ASIS membership to further BEPP's certification interests, as seen, e.g., in Exhibit D and in the screenshot below:

48. BEPP's willful infringement of ASIS trademark rights is apparent.

COUNT I Willful Trademark Infringement under 15 U.S.C. § 1114

- 49. ASIS adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1-48 as if fully set forth herein.

Mr. James Cameron, CPP Chairman Board of Executive Protection Professionals 8131 Dolce Flore Avenue Las Vegas, Nevada 89178

Re: Trademark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL

Dear Mr. Cameron:

We are the attorneys for ASIS International (ASIS) and have been contacted regarding use by the Board of Executive Protection Professionals of a trademark that is nearly identical to our client's well known and federally registered trademark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL. (Copy of Registration No. 4,196,805, enclosed). The Board of Executive Protection Professionals has adopted, and initiated use of the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL (CEPP) in connection with security educational programs marketed to individuals who are closely associated with ASIS and who are familiar with ASIS's nearly identical educational programs. The advertisement for the CEPP program even mentions ASIS in its promotional materials (https://www.ep-board.org/).

ASIS's trademark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL is a widely recognized mark of worldwide prominence and broad registration both here in the United States and in many foreign countries. The acronym for this mark, CPP, is also quite well known and well-registered. The adoption, use and promotion by the Board of Executive Protection Professionals of a mark that is nearly identical to ASIS's CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL trademark amounts to blatant trademark infringement and is bound to lead to confusion within the industrial security profession as to the source of the services being promoted by both ASIS and the Board of Executive Protection Professionals. The existence and promotion of the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL will undoubtedly lead purchasers and those who are part of the security industry to believe that ASIS is somehow involved with this new mark and the programs and services being offered under it.

Webster, Chamberlain & Bean

James Cameron February 10, 2022 Page Two

We are aware also, that the Board of Executive Protection Professionals has submitted an application to register the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL to the U.S. Trademark Office, in further violation of ASIS's rights in its own registered (and incontestable) mark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL.

Our client wishes to settle this matter in an amicable way but cannot ignore the diminution of rights and reputation it is now suffering due to the promotion of services under the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL. We demand that the Board immediately cease all use and promotion of this mark, including its removal from the Board's website, and that it withdraw the application to register this mark now pending in the U.S. Trademark Office. If these demands are not met within fifteen days of the date of this letter, our client will consider and implement all legal remedies available to it including a lawsuit for trademark infringement in a U.S. federal district court.

Please contact us as soon as possible with assurances that these reasonable demands will be met by the Board in a timely manner.

Sincerely,

John W. Hazard, Jr.

Re: Trademark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL

Dear Mr. Cameron:

We are the attorneys for ASIS International (ASIS), and have once again been contacted regarding use by the Board of Executive Protection Professionals of a trademark that is nearly identical to our client's well known and federally registered trademark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL. (Copy of registration enclosed). The Board of Executive Protection Professionals has once again adopted and has initiated use of the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL (CEPP) in connection with planned security educational programs marketed to individuals who are closely associated with ASIS and who are familiar with ASIS's nearly identical educational programs. The advertisement for the CEPP program evens mentions ASIS in its promotional materials (https://www.ep-board.org/boardcert).

As you know from our previous correspondence to you in February 2022 (copy of February 10, 2022 letter enclosed), ASIS's trademark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL is a widely recognized mark of worldwide prominence and broad registration both here in the United States and in many foreign countries. The acronym for this mark, CPP, is also quite well known and well-registered. The adoption, use and promotion by the Board of Executive Protection Professionals of a mark that is nearly identical to ASIS's CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL trademark amounts to blatant trademark infringement and is bound to lead to confusion within the industrial security profession as to the source of the services being promoted by both ASIS and the Board of Executive Protection Professionals. The existence and promotion of the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL will undoubtedly lead purchasers and those who are part of the security industry to believe that ASIS is somehow involved with this new mark and the programs and services being offered under it.

We are aware also, that the Board of Executive Protection Professionals has submitted a new application to register the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL to the U.S. Trademark Office, in further violation of ASIS's rights in its own registered (and incontestable) mark CERTIFIED PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL (Application Serial No. 98600516). This application apparently replaces the earlier application for the same mark, which we also objected to, and which was subsequently abandoned by BEPP.

As in the past, our client wishes to settle this matter in an amicable way, but cannot ignore the diminution of rights and reputation it is now suffering due to BEPP's display and promotion of planned services under the mark CERTIFIED EXECUTIVE PROTECTION PROFESSIONAL. We demand that the Board immediately cease all use and promotion of this mark, including its removal from the Board's website, and that it withdraw the application to register this mark now pending in the U.S. Trademark Office. If these demands are not met within fifteen days of the date of this letter, our client will consider and implement all legal remedies available to it including a lawsuit for trademark infringement in a U.S. federal district court.

Please contact us as soon as possible with assurances that these reasonable demands will be met by the Board in a timely manner.

Sincerely,

John W. Hazard, Ji
